she was seen where she and Mrs. Lawrence Prokopowicz were directing the work of the city's needy children. "I am sure that this Murphy is," she said. "But as a wonder, can you send me your story tomorrow?" "Send me," she said. "Nobody would know that was his day off."

"I am sure," she said. "Well, he said he'd be back tomorrow afternoon. I suppose he meant what he was through at the office. He worked like a Trojan over some packing cases and wrapping packages and his wrapping ... and ... well, he was his wrapping."

"Yes," she said. "Yes, I know." "I'll never forget the Christmas morning I dropped into the 'State Journal' office for a minute ... and there sat Murphy, all alone."

"Yes," she said. "What are you doing?" "Nothing ..."

"I was about my business and when I left I added light."

"So in June," she said. "This is Lawrence. You should be here!" "Well," he said. "I signed somebody's name to be around here today in case some poor kid was missed and didn't get any work from the Happy Stocking club and somebody called up here ..."

"Never mind. Do you have your-?"

"Murphy," she said. "Murphy ..."

"I'll never forget, through all the years, the sight of that little Jewish boy, sitting in that still, unassuming office all alone, in the morning of the birth of Jesus Christ."

"Well, we had a little party for Murphy last night because he's going to war tomorrow and we bought him a present. You'll be glad to see him from a little while. We didn't get in yesterday."

go that far. But this I know, that Americans, in whom personal liberty and freedom of conscience is prized above all else, will never condone the bitter tragedy of this man who would make a commodity of souls for his own diabolical purpose." — Senator James M. Mead.

This Is What Zionism Means

By DR. SELIG BRODETSKY
(President, British Board of Jewish Deputies)

WE Jews have for nineteen centuries stood alone. We have fought battles in our own way. Much of that freedom which democracy is fighting to save for the future is due to Jewish resistance during all these centuries. In 1933 once again Jewry stood alone. The great aggression against humanity began with the attack on Jews in Germany. It has taken the world nine years to realize this. In the last war Jewry was divided in sentiment. Today all Jews are on one side. Now I should have thought that this fact would have been welcomed by those great powers that now constitute the great world front against Nazidom. But this is not so. The Jews still stand isolated.

There are two great things that we Jews have to strive for today. They are both equally important. The first is the recognition of the Jewish people in the fighting of the war, and the second is the recognition of the Jewish people in the making of the peace. The fact is that the Jews do not constitute a State—and technically, therefore, one can say that the Jews are excluded from Allied councils because of this technical difficulty. But the great genius of statesmen consists in by-passing technicalities. And I think that history will show a good many acts of statesmanship in the by-passing of both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt. And I think it is not beyond their statesmanship to give the Jews the place they ought to have both in the waging of the war and in the reconstruction that is going to take place after the war.

We have not yet been given the privilege of fighting as a people in the war. It is true that 12,000 Jews in Palestine have managed to be accepted as volunteers in the British forces. They have had to develop the art of breaking through a jungle of obstruction and administrative opposition. Nevertheless these Jews are fighting. And it is there reason for any one of us to hang our head in shame at their achievements? When General Wavell writes to the Vaad Leumi praising the deeds of the Palestinians in his army, when Admiral Cunningham writes to Zetulun praising the deeds of the Palestinians on the sea, we know these Palestinians are camouflaged Jews. I would like to know why British statesmen have found it necessary to hide the word "Jew" behind a smokescreen of that kind. Are they afraid that the Axis will say that the Allies are fighting the war of the Jews? Has the Axis waited to say that?

You can almost divide Jewry into those who are positive on the Palestine issue, and who are therefore in favor of a Jewish fighting force, and those who are against Zionism and against our objects in Palestine, and to most of whom therefore the question of a Jewish fighting force is taboo. The idea of the Jewish fighting force is the emancipation of the Jewish people from what has been the greatest discrimination in history, I refer to the fact that for centuries the Jews have been condemned to be the victims of world policy, and
