Remember when the dining room table was a dinette in the kitchen? It was probably made from chrome and plastic that eventually cracked or was very uncomfortable because the back were straight and the seats thinly padded, if at all. Today's dinette has such a new look, with more sophisticated styling and better materials manufacturers don't call them dinettes anymore.

A lot has gone into research and development since those early days. Manufacturers have become more concerned about what the consumer wants and will buy.

New Kitchens Out of Old

If you're dissatisfied with your kitchen, you can make it more functional, more attractive and more livable — without spending a small fortune. Is it dark and drab? The two easiest ways to handle that situation are with new paint and new lighting. Use semi-gloss enamel rather than a flat paint for the cabinets and woodwork—it's much easier to keep clean. For lighting you may well need nothing more than to replace the bulb fixture with a fluorescent illumination. This creates a softer, more even light with much less glare, if any. Are the cabinets outdated and tacky? Probably just the doors give that appearance, so it's not necessary to replace the entire cabinets, which could be costly. If the doors have lip overhangs, cut them down to fit flush in the cabinet frames and change the hardware to metal or ceramic. What about the floor? Is covered with old linoleum that's stained and beginning to curl and crack? Replace it with a no-wax

Are the work surfaces in your kitchen covered with knife cuts. scratchy and hard to clean? Build or buy a chopping block counter top, and do all your cutting, dicing and pounding on that. A laminated surface on the rest of your counters will last for years without looking old and worn.

It's not hard to cook up a kitchen that can be as satisfying to cook in as is the food you cook
