Other newspapers may not be in a similar position. There are too many Jewish newspapers which are subsidized and are held captive by their backers. There are some, even, which receive subsidies directly or indirectly from Jewish Agency or party funds. I think this is a baneful situation. If a newspaper cannot exist without a subsidy it were better it did not exist at all (I am not including house-organs). And maybe the withdrawal of a subsidy might in-

Jewish life. The Jewish public and leadership must be continually made aware of the realities of Jewish life. Without them they will ignore the problems of the day and devote themselves, as they now largely do, to non-events and non-problems. Our leaders, lay and rabbinic, are all answering the questions which nobody is asking. We must continually
